MATT OSBORNE

Matt Osborne is a real life hero; the kind that stories are written about and the kind that you cannot forget.

As a native of Dallas, Texas Matt holds a B.A. in International Studies from Miami University in Oxford, OH, and a M.A. in International Policy Studies from the Monterey Institute of International Studies in California.

Matt enjoyed both serving his country and traveling the world in a government career, which availed him many opportunities and privileges such as meeting presidents, prime ministers, kings, princes, and other high profile officials.

In leaving the CIA and U.S. Department of State, Matt made the considerable sacrifice of giving up his U.S. government pension, health care, and stable salary in order to fight for the O.U.R. cause.

As Senior Vice President for Rescue and Rehabilitation at Operation Underground Railroad (O.U.R.) Matt continues to blaze a trail in the fight against modern day slavery as he rescues and ensures rehabilitation for women and children trafficked and sold into sexual slavery in the U.S. and around the world.

A family man, Matt was grateful that the move to O.U.R. allowed him to move back to Texas with his family and enjoy more time with his wife and 2 daughters. He says that they give him the drive to fight child exploitation and human trafficking as there is simply no higher cause than helping children.
